Profile

I am originally from Russia, have been living in the UK for 3 years, and before that for 1.5 years in Canada. Before emigrating, I had experience mostly in sales in various areas. Thanks to my previous work, I developed the ability to communicate effectively with clients, stress resistance, responsibility, teamwork skills, and determination. But I have always had an interest in technology, so one day I started an online programming course and found out that I like writing code. During emigration, I decided to completely change my career to the IT domain. After moving abroad, I studied English and French, and also began to learn Python, took online courses on programming and tech support.
